CITATION

The Medical Society of Eastern Pennsylvania is an auxiliary of the National Medical Association, a national organization established over 100 years ago, and representing the country's black physicians. The MSEP works diligently to raise scholarship money for medical students.

In addition to raising funds to aid future physicians, the MSEP recognizes and honors physicians and individuals that have made significant contributions to the community and the healthcare field.

One such individual is Dr. Emily Pollard. Dr. Pollard is a board-certified plastic surgeon and educator who has built a highly successful medical practice. Named by Black Enterprise Magazine as one of "Five Phenomenal Women You Should Know," Dr. Pollard's expertise, experience and sensitivity in managing the reconstructive and cosmetic surgery issues associated with all ethnic groups, has garnered her national recognition and esteem.

The City of Philadelphia is proud to join with the Medical Society of Eastern Pennsylvania and the National Medical Association in saluting Dr. Pollard for her compassion and her commitment to her patients and her contributions to the field of plastic surgery.

It is fitting and appropriate, that the City of Philadelphia officially recognizes with this Citation and join her family, friends, patients and colleagues in celebrating her commitment to others and dedicated work in the healthcare field.
